Dear Hector,

Many thanks for your letters and for the loan of your book. I took it all over Venezuela with me, and it was much better than a lot of the official information sheets we were given down there.

I had a good visit with Mo, who sent you his best. I also visited with Rod O'Connor at an embassy function one night. Naturally, I'm very grateful to you for having paved the way for me with both of these gentlemen.

I feel that these two weeks in Venezuela constitute one of the most interesting trips I have ever been privileged to make. I'll try to out-talk you, if our paths cross before I forget everything I learned down there.

Thanks again,

Edward H. Harte
