Dear Hector:

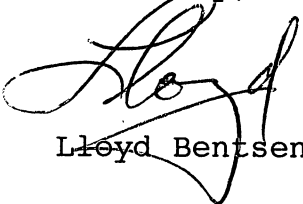

I enjoyed our recent meeting. It is always a pleasure to visit with you.

During our conversation, I agreed to take a summer intern that you recommended. However, I now understand that your candidate, Mr. Roland Garcia, Jr., is not interested in an internship but rather has applied for a permanent position with my office.

I appreciate your bringing this talented young man to my attention. He is quite impressive. His qualifications are excellent. Choosing between qualified individuals for a given job makes for some hard decisions. I regret we were not able to offer to Mr. Garcia the position for which he applied. However, he will certainly be given every consideration should I have an equally suitable opening in the future.

Again, Hector, I enjoyed our visit and look forward to seeing you on my next trip to Corpus Christi.

Sincerely,

Lloyd Bentsen
