Dear Dr. Garcia:

It was indeed a pleasure to run into you at the airport, and then to have the opportunity to fly to Washington with you. I hope that all of your business in Washington went well. It seems that we never have the opportunity to get together here for one reason or another, but mostly because I know you have a busy schedule when you visit here. Well, Delfina and I are still hoping to have you here at our house one of these times when you come up with a little more time.

By the way, thanks a million for the telegram you sent to Stanford. You were very kind, and I am sure that it will help tremendously. I really do not know what the job is all about, but it won't hurt to find out.

With best personal regards and good wishes.

Sincerely,

Raymond Telles
Ambassador
