Freddie Records: Una

One day, a man had a dream, a dream to create a production company. The only problem that he would overcome is that he would only have a total of $400.00 to begin that dream.

In November of 1969, that dream would begin, it was then when Freddie Martinez would open Freddie Records, but in his garage. After releasing the single "Botoncito De Cariño," Freddie would be able to open a small studio. It was then in 1971, when Freddie Martinez would record his hugest hit "Te Traigo Estas Flores," which would spill into international stardom.

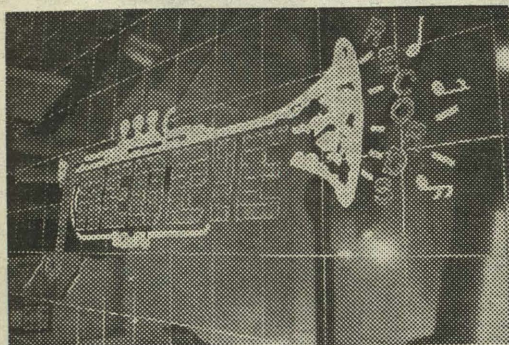

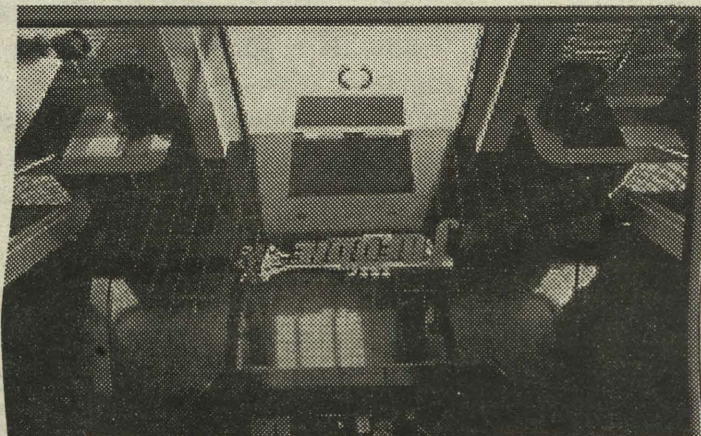

As time progressed, artists such as: Joe Bravo, Cornelio Reyna, Ruben Vela, La Sombra, Selena, Little Joe, Ramon Ayala, Jaime Y Los Chamacos, among others would join the label. As before, Freddie's mission statement has always stated "Our artists are the lifeblood of our company, and it's our responsibility to promote the importance of their music and our culture to all," and the same statement still stands today!

Today, backed with a new state of the art building, Freddie Records has become one of the world-wide leaders in Tejano Music Production. The new Freddie Records includes 3 recording studios, along with the mastering studios. The new building also includes the music warehouse where music of today and yesterday are available to Tejano fans. Among the many surprises that have been delivered, it also includes an office, which was suited to fit the man himself, that has the title Te Traigo Estas Flores painted on the floor. Right before you enter the main lobby, which has been designed into somewhat of a museum of past Freddie Record. recording artists, you are able to overlook El Paseo De La Fama, which include the stars dedicated to Jaime De Anda Y Los Chamacos, Little Joe Hernandez, Augustin Ramirez, Los Terribles Del Norte, Ramon Ayala,

Leyenda De Corpus Christi!

Carlos Cardenas, Freddie Martinez and The Legends.

Members of the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, The City Council, and surrounding family, friends, and fans of the Freddie Records empire are extremely happy and proud of the new and improved Freddie Records building.

On behalf of Tejano Y Gruperio, I would like to say that Freddie, JoAnn, Freddie Jr., Marc, John, Lee, and the entire Freddie Records staff, you have all created a long lasting memory in Tejano Music, and have put Corpus Christi, back on the map!
