

Dear Dr. Hector Garcia:

3-10-85

I sincerely hope that when this informal letter reaches your attention it may find you well on your way to recovery. I suspect that you Sir may not recall off-hand who I am due to the fact that your services as a skilled physician requires, knowledge of many types of individuals, and it is next to impossible to recall each and everyone instantly, but to me doctor it seems as only yesterday that your skills were successfully applied for my recovery back in December and January of 1982-83 when I laid in a hospital bed in m.m. infected with serum hepatitis due to my own stupidity of drug-dependancy.

I'm presently in my final stages of incarceration and due to be released no later than on the 8th of April this year, and my father Mr. Francisco Garcia has informed of your illness and the severities involved. I deeply want to express my concern for your health and be assured that you are included in my daily prayers aswell as the hundreds of individuals affiliated with you as an individual and physician. May our Creator guide you to better health / promptness recovery. Good-bye for now, but not forever!

Respectfully I remain,

Luis Garcia
