Dear Hector,

I return the photograph after dutifully complying with your instructions. Joyce was very impressed with the banquet and with you. I only wish that we could see more of each other. I do not think I ever fully realized how confining this job really is. It seems that my working hours are spent either in the courtroom or in my chambers talking to lawyers. I have little opportunity to visit anyone except lawyers who have suits pending in my court. This is one of the most serious drawbacks of this job and, as you know, my visits to Corpus Christi are few and erratic. I hope that on your next trip to Houston we can find time to visit and fill in all the blank spots.

Again, Joyce was fascinated and overwhelmed by the events. Among other things, she had never had a governor for a dinner companion.

Sincerely, Ĵames DeAnda
